Background: Art and Heritage has been an integral part of our Indian Culture. These art forms and heritage sites can be brought back to life in a classroom environment. The heritage properties and art and craft of India can be brought to life from anywhere simply by using an AR application on the phone. Summary: To devise a chapter on Indian Built Heritage and enhance student learning experience by creating an AR mobile application to visualise monuments in 3D. Objective: ? Augmented reality models can be attached to a book. It will help provide an enhanced and expanded view of three-dimensional heritage properties and art by expanding the model in space. ? It can assist students learn more about India and its rich culture and heritage by using picture tracking and a simple visual animation technique."

Team PROPE EVENTOPEDIA

Team Members - Hari Om Dwivedi (Team Leader), Ayesha Khan, Farhana Khan, Jayanti Gupta, Itee Mishra & Krishna Bhadauria.

The problem statement for the hackathon was titled as 'Lack of Information about Academic Activities in a single platform'. Justifying the theme 'Smart Education', this team under the guidance of the mentor, Dr. Atul Kumar, approached as follows: The web app offers students and institutions a convenient way to share information about events happening around them. With automated authentication using AICTE Permanent Id, institutions can easily add moderators who can list events on their behalf. Moderators and students can also communicate with each other directly through one-to-one chat space. In addition, the machine learning algorithm will analyze past events and make predictions about which upcoming events you might be interested in. Finally, the geolocation APIs offer a pin code/location-based notification system to keep you updated on events happening near you.
